Subject: Event Locker Room Access Policy Change

As many of you are aware, at a recent WCFO event there was an altercation between multiple people inside one of the locker rooms, including at least one person not on the card or working in any of the fight camps. This led to the injury of a competitor inside the locker room. Earlier this year there were also several accounts of personal lockers being broken into or tampered with, and at least two confirmed incidents of theft. In response to these recent events, the WCFO will be stricter about locker room access beginning with the August 5 event.

Each competitor will be issued three locker room passes—one for the competitor themselves, and two for the competitor's trainer and cutman. Each pass will be on a lanyard which will be either blue or green and correspond to the color locker room to which you are assigned. Passes and lanyards must be clearly and prominently displayed on your person to enter the locker room, and at all times when inside. Security will be posted outside both locker rooms to ensure there is no unauthorized access to competitors or their belongings.

On behalf of Terry Frost and the rest of WCFO leadership, we apologize for any inconvenience these new rules might cause, but the WCFO and its leadership are fully committed to a safe, professional environment at all competitions. Thank you for your understanding and compliance.
